SHAMROCK III. TAKES A FAST SPIN OFF THE HOOK

Lipton's New Wonder Is Pronounced a Real Flyer by the Scores of Experts Who See Her Under Sail for the First Time-Looks Smaller Than Reliance.

OBSERVATION TOWER. HIGH-LAND, N. J., June 27.—Shamrock III.
Sir Thomas Lipton's new cup challenger, thad her first trial in American waters this afternoon. Accompanied by Shamrock II, the gew boat struck out over the course off Sandy Hook in a light breeze to show what sort of a craft she is.

The two boats didn't engage in a read frace. They merely got out and stretched themselves and let the breeze have a bit of a blow at their wings.

It was 12,21 o'clock when Shamrock III cast off her tow from Sir Thomas's yacht Erin and set out on her course. She immediately broke out her jib and staysail. A minute later Shamrock I, was away after her and treading on her heels.

The Irish baronet and Designer William Fife were aboard the new challenger watching her carefully. Thay were taken on board from the Erin off Scotland Lightship.

Both yachts went on a port tack at 12.48 o'clock. Shamrock III. led by a half mile and kept increasing her lead right along.

Shamrock I, did herself proud a few minutes after Shamrock III, went about on starboard tack at 12.48. The old boat went about in half the time dout in England.

Outside there was something of a symmrock III, like Reliance, rode over the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of the waves as she went out Gedney's Chan-length of a shamrock III, like Reliance.
